Note: (a), (b) are used to denote differences in components across different implementation-level CPP trainings. All training sessions, learning sessions, and consult calls must be conducted by either endorsed CPP trainers or approved CPP apprentice trainers.

Educational and Licensure Requirements

At the start of training, participant is a Master's or doctoral level psychotherapist with a degree in a mental health discipline.

Note: This training is not considered intensive enough for student (e.g. practicum students and psychology interns to learn the model).

Unlicensed master's and doctoral level staff may be eligible for participation but only if the training team consents and there is a licensed agency staff member who supervises that team member and participates in the LC for the duration of the training.

By signing here, you acknowledge that you understand the minimum requirements for completing an implementation-level course in Child-Parent Psychotherapy. Upon completion of all minimum training requirements and educational and licensure requirements, you will receive a certificate of completion, and you will be invited to the national Child-Parent Psychotherapy roster.

If you do not complete the minimum requirements, you will not complete the course, and you will not be included on a roster. If you miss the first learning session, you will not be able to begin training until you complete that learning session. If you miss the second or third learning session or are slightly under the required number of consultation sessions, you may request that your CPP trainer provide you with additional consultation and/or the possibility of attending another learning session in order to gain additional CPP training experience and make-up the training hours. CPP trainers will generally try to accommodate your request because we want everyone to complete training, but there may be additional costs associated with these make-up sessions, and we cannot guarantee that make-up sessions will be available.
