Braided Systems of Care Funding

Leveraging braided federal, state, and private funds

Oklahoma has strengthened statewide CPP training by "braiding" Systems of Care (SOC) funds with sources like Project LAUNCH, an NCTSI grant from OK DMH, an HRSA courts program, a Title V block grant, and philanthropic support. Collaborating with partners to craft joint funding proposals has also strengthened relationships among IECMH organizations.

Collaboration Around Strategic Plan

A shared framework for change

Oklahoma's IECMH Strategic Plan was a vital organizational driver of CPP sustainability. OSDH initially developed the plan as a requirement for the Project LAUNCH but then broadened it into a statewide framework, involving state stakeholders such as DMH and OK-AIMH. Institutional collaboration around the strategic plan helped build momentum for CPP implementation.

Relationship with Local Stakeholders

Community advocates to cross-system partners

Advocates from coordinating agencies secured a continuation of CPP services at the Tulsa SBCT site in 2015 through a 3-step process:

- Educated local voices on early development and care
- Partnered with local DHS and child-welfare leaders to engage judges and attorneys
- Created a coalition of the above stakeholders to lobby state agencies
